All restaurants and restaurant organizations have one common objective (among others) – to get warm bodies in their seats daily! As a restaurant-focused marketing team with restaurant management experience, we understand that!

However, managers are pulled in scattered directions with the expectation to be very successful in EVERY assigned area. Internal corporate restaurant marketers have in-store marketing responsibilities, community-relations tasks, vendor-management, sales quotas to meet and these may just be a small part of their job description. These daily and very involved responsibilities, leave little or no room to focus on effectively leveraging the power of social media for the business.
